LITTLE GIRL HIT BY STRAY RIFLE SHOT

Tinley Resident Found Dead In Home

Mrs. Paulina Maurin, aged 65 years was found dead of a heart attack in her home Monday morning. Mrs. Maurin had been packing her household goods preparatory to moving to Chicago to make her home with her daughter. Surviving are 1 son Steven, a daughter Mrs. Chas. Nelson of Chicago, 2 granddaughters and 1 grand son.

Mr. Maurin died a few years ago and since then the deceased has been living alone.

She had been a resident of Tinley Park for quite a number of years. Funeral services were held from the St. Geo. Catholic church, Tinley Park, Thursday morning with Father Fitzpatrick officiating at the Requiem high Mass. Burial was made in a Chicago cemetery.

MISS JAYNE SLAGLE OF FRANKFORT IS A CHARMING AUTUMN BRIDE

St. Peter's Evang. church was the scene of a very pretty, autumn wedding Sunday Sept. 27 at 8 pm when Miss Jayne Slagle, daughter of Mrs. Rachel Slagle became the bride of Grant Geuther, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Geuther Jr. of Frankfort. The church was decorated with palms and white gladiolus with many candles supplying the brilliant yet soft light.

Preceding the ceremony which was performed by Rev. G. S. Gerhold, Miss Lillian Collins of Chicago Heights as guest organist played love tunes. Mr. Arthur Lambrecht sang "Calm as the Night" and immediately after the ceremony sang "Oh Promise Me."

Promptly at 8 pm as the strains of the wedding march peeled forth, Miss Slagle entered and was given in marriage by Mr. Walter Hansen of Chicago who is an intimate friend of the bride. She was very beautiful in a French Shadow Organdy gown. She wore a fingertip veil and carried a bridal bouquet of white gladiolus. Her only jewelry was a gold heart and chain which was a gift of the groom.

Mrs. Robert Slagle her sister in law served as matron of honor and was dressed in yellow crepe with a hair ornament of the same color and carried a bouquet of gladiolus.

Miss LaVerne Halperson and Miss Dona McLean friends of the bride were bridesmaids and wore green taffeta with hair ornaments of same color and carried bouquets of peach gladiolus.

The groom was attended by his cousin Norman Baumgartner of Homewood as best man and Mr. Ralph Nieland, cousin of the groom and Wm. Breidert friend of the groom as ushers. All men in the bridal party wore tuxedos with button hole flowers.

A reception was held for 200 relatives and friends in the social room of the church. The couple received many gifts and have the best wishes of all. They enjoyed a short wedding trip after which they will go to housekeeping in the Henry Geuther home. Mr and Mrs Henry Geuther are expecting to reside with Mrs. B. Zechlin during the winter.

MOKENA OGDON TO PICKUP PAPER THIS SATURDAY

Owing to the very cold and wet weather enjoyed last Saturday, no attempt was made to pick up paper by the Civilian Defense Truck in Mokena.

If all who wish to contribute paper to provide funds for OGD will bundle all papers and tie securely two ways, and place in accessible place in front of their homes a truck will pick up this Saturday afternoon.

If any iron or brass is to be donated please keep separately. Our pick up of scrap last Saturday was very good and we thank all who donated.

We are especially indebted to the State Highway Dept. for the use of our truck, Mr. Herman Schweser and Mr. Chris Braun for the donation of their services, the OGD Messengers, Gordon Spiess, Arthur Hostert and Walter Hentsch, for the work they did in collecting and the Boy Scouts for their assistance.

Please remember this is Scrap Collection, not May Day Cleanup. We can't pick up tin cans, old bottles, broken glass or anything of that sort.

HIRSCH TAVERN SERVING SANDWICHES

Hirsch's Tavern in Mokena are now serving hamburger sandwiches. See their adv. in this issue for more details.

CARD OF THANKS

I sincerely thank the Frankfort Fire Dept. and all who helped to fight the fire at my place last Thursday night.

HEART ATTACK FATAL TO FRANKFORT MAN

Harry G. Lions, 68 years old who came to Frankfort from Brownsville, Pa. 10 months ago, died suddenly Saturday night following a heart attack suffered in his home in Frankfort. He is survived by his widow and 3 daughters, Mrs. Geo. Kebrans of Frankfort, Marietta, and Mrs. Geo. Kelly of Brownsville, 3 sons John of Frankfort, Walter and Alex of Brownsville. Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at 2 p.m. at the Gerardi Funeral home Chicago Heights, with burial in Frankfort cemetery.

MISS SHIRLEY HARRIS PALOS PARK BECOMES BRIDE OF ERWIN YUNKER OF ORLAND

A very pretty fall wedding took place last Sunday afternoon Sept. 27 at three o'clock in St. John Evangelical church in Mokena when Miss Shirley Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Harris of Palos Park became the bride of Mr. Erwin Yunker, son of Supervisor and Mrs. Fred Yunker of Orland Park. The pastor of the church Rev. Theo. Haeefe officiated using the double ring ceremony.

The altar of the church was decorated in white flowers and candles, the ushers lighting same.

Preceding the ceremony and following, Mrs. Theo. Haeefe sang "Because and I Love You Truly," accompanied by Mrs. Roy Krapp who also played the wedding march.

Miss Dorothy Yunker, sister of the groom was the maid of honor who wore a blue lace trimmed gown and carried yellow tea roses. Miss Arlene Heide, cousin of the bride was bridesmaid. She wore pink lace trimmed gown and her flowers were pink roses. Both wore a finger tip veil caught at the head with flowers.

The bride was led to the altar by her father where she met the groom and his best man, Mr. Harry Yunker. The bride wore the traditional white satin, lace trimmed with a long veil of Irish point lace caught at her head with a crown of pearls. Her bouquet was white roses and pom poms.

Master Ronald Lorenzen, cousin, was the ring bearer and little Marjorie Yunker, sister of the groom, wearing a pink taffeta dress with blue velvet bows and a floral head dress, scattered rose petals before the bride's path.

The bride's mother was gowned in blue with gold hobnail trimmings. The groom's mother wore lace trimmed black. Each had a shoulder corsage of white pom-poms.

Following the ceremony, the wedding guests departed to the Palos Park Community Hall where the wedding dinner was served to 200 relatives and guests.

Many lovely gifts were presented this couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Yunker left that evening for a short honeymoon trip to Wisconsin. They will make their future home in the new house being built on the Fred Yunker farm on Wolf road, with whom the groom is engaged in farming with his father.

LOTS BEING SOLD IN NEW BARTLETT SUBDIVISION IN MOKENA

The new Bartlett subdivision at Mokena has attracted a number of Chicago buyers. The Bartlett properties along Wolf road and on the gravel road west of Mokena have been laid out in lots and acreage.

The timber land where the former Mokena Men's Club dance pavilion was located is to be made a very pretty spot for homes. A winding gravel road is to be constructed.

Choice lots will be located in this addition. The holdings were open to public sale 2 weeks ago Sunday. Last Sunday the sales manager Mr. Frank Merrill was on the grounds and several lots were sold.

It is understood that no new buildings can be erected at the present time but the land which is sold will be the means of the purchasers establishing a home after the war is over. The Bartlett Company expects to open quite an extensive advertising campaign later on.

According to Mr. Merrill there will be certain restrictions regarding buildings so that tar paper shacks, chicken houses and garages will not be used for living quarters. Mr. Merrill stated that his company aims to be an asset to the community and aid in its up building.

TINLEY AND ORLAND FARMERS PLAY SOFTBALL AT ORLAND OCTOBER 11

The farmers of Tinley Park and Orland Park have decided to raise funds for the USO and in order to accomplish this have decided to put on a big soft ball game at the Orland Park Booster club diamond on the afternoon of Sunday, October 11th at 2 p.m. Everyone is heartily invited to attend this game and help raise the money for the very worthy purpose it is to be used for.

St. Michael's Parish of Orland Park Observing 75th Anniversary

An outstanding event in the history of Orland and Homer Townships will be commemorated Sunday, October 4 when St. Michael's Catholic church of Orland Park will celebrate its Diamond Jubilee. This event falls very appropriately, on the feast of St. Michael at which time for many years the Parish has held its annual Fall Festival. The religious celebration will take place in the morning, the justly famed chicken dinner will be served from 12 noon to 3 pm and the supper will be served in the evening. It is expected that all present members of the parish will participate in this event and a cordial invitation is extended to all former parishioners, to members of surrounding parishes and to the entire Orland community.

St. Michael's church has filled an important place in the lives of a large part of this community, for three quarters of a century. Founded at Goodings Grove in Homer township Sept. 29, 1867 at the time of the celebration of The Feast of St. Michael, the new parish was very appropriately named for that Saint. Under the wise and constructive leadership of its first pastor the Rev. Fr. Suitbert Demarteau, OSB, the new parish immediately began to exert a powerful influence through out the community. Father Demarteau was succeeded as pastor in turn by the Revs. J. H. Jutting, C. Hout, Rudesindus Schreimb, OSB, Suitbert Rickert OSB, Leonard Schlamm, Richard Kraus and Wm. Dettmer each of whom left behind him a heritage of successful building to his successor. In 1905, the Jesuit Fathers took over the administration of the parish and these good Fathers continued to carry on the excellent work of their predecessors. These pastors in order were: the Rev. Frs. John B. Goesse, C. J. V. Bill, John Kokenge, Geo. H. Mahowald, James Preuss, Edward C. Calhoun, J. L. Daley, E. J. Zurlinden and Wm. A. Gorey. Rev. Fr. J. L. Rooney is the present capable pastor of the parish.

It was during Father Daley's pastorate that the parish site was moved from Goodings Grove to Orland Park and the present church edifice begun. This task was ably taken up and completed by his successor Rev. Fr. E. J. Zurlinden who was succeeded by Rev. Fr. Wm. A. Gorey, under whose administration the present beautiful and substantial Rectory was built. 1935 Fr. Gorey was called to the pastorate of the Holy Family Church at North Chicago, and just recently has been elevated to the pastorate of one of the largest parishes in the Chicago Archdiocese that of St. Sabina church in Chicago.

The present pastor, Rev. Fr. J. L. Rooney came to St. Michael's parish in 1935. He is young, energetic, a sound Churchman, able administrator and a proven leader, and has successfully carried on and added to the influence and prestige of the church throughout the community.

Though not a particularly large parish in number of communicants, nor an especially wealthy one, St. Michael's of Orland Park is nevertheless built on a foundation of regular contributions from its parishioners, it draws its financial support, to a very large extent from three annual events which have come to be acknowledged fixtures in the social calendar of the community: the annual 4th of July picnic, the Fall Festival and the Poultry Bazaar which is held annually just prior to the winter holidays. The intra-church activities consist of a well organized Holy Name Society of which Postmaster A. J. Toelle is President, the Altar and Rosary Society which is headed by Mrs. Andrew Ludwig, and the Ladies Sewing circle which is presided over by Mrs. Andrew Braasch.

St. Michael's church is 75 years old, three quarters of a century of useful service to God and to the community. Upon its records will be found inscribed the births of countless numbers of our residents who are now grown old; it has given its blessings and has joined in holy matrimony a large number of happily married families in our community; its priests have given the comforts of religion to the living and made easy the path of the dying for these many years; truly, it has been an institution for good in our community. And now St. Michael's Church of Orland Park invites you to its Diamond Jubilee of Christian Service to rejoice with them in a glorious past and to help it to continued existence of service for the years to come.

MRS. H. HALEY DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Harrison Haley of Kempton Ill., well known in this locality, who has been ill for the past year, passed away in St. Mary's hospital in Kankakee, Ill., Monday morning following a serious operation performed there August 18. Mrs. Haley was a patient sufferer and everything humanly possible that could be done to save her life and to relieve suffering was done, but to no avail. Her niece, Mrs. Hugo Neithammer of Mokena was one of the three trained nurses who helped care for her.

Mrs. Haley, nee Elsie Lauffer, was born in Homer township, Dec. 17, 1888, the daughter of Mr. Nicholas and Florence Lauffer. On Nov. 23, 1910 she was united in marriage with Mr. Haley when they located in Kempton, Ill., on their farm where they have lived since.

Two sons were born to them, Donald now of Dwight, Ill., and Lt. Merle Haley of the U. S. Signal Corp. located at Ft. Monmouth, N. J. who with their father survive.

Also surviving are two grand children; two sisters, Mrs. Elmer Cooper and Mrs. Barney Hostert of Mokena; two brothers, Arthur and Charles Lauffer of Homer township and many other relatives and a host of friends.

Funeral services were held from the late home at Kempton Wednesday afternoon to the Methodist church at Kempton with burial in the Kempton cemetery.

OLDEST RESIDENTS CANNOT REMEMBER SEEING BLIZZARD IN SEPTEMBER

Last Friday afternoon snow flurries followed a cold rain and soon afterward a typical December blizzard was raging. Within a very short while the countryside and roads were covered with a white mantle. The snow was followed by freezing weather which killed off all the remaining garden truck and did considerable damage to the late soy bean crop. Most of the beans were still soft and consequently were ruined by the cold. The ground being warm, snow did not last long however and before Saturday morning had again disappeared.

This freak blizzard was very outstanding inasmuch as none of the old timers of this territory can recollect of ever seeing a blizzard in September. A few snow flurries have been observed in past years in September but not a heavy snow.

Occupation of Aleutian Islands by Japanese Constitutes Serious Menace to Entire U. S.

Battle of Kiska Island, Main Jap Stronghold, Unique in Warfare

By CHARLES A. SINGLER

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

The Aleutian islands, or Catherine Archipelago, are a bow-shaped chain of small islands in the North Pacific which point forever towards Japan. This geographical fact took on military significance after the Jap attack on Dutch Harbor last June.

The Aleutians extend west from Alaska toward Kamchatka peninsula for nearly a thousand miles. There are about 70 islands and 80 inlets, all of which are included in the territory of Alaska. The largest of these islands is Unalaska; Unalaska is the port of entry for western Alaska, and the center of the fur trade.

Desolate, rocky, and forbidding, the Aleutians apparently are a continuation of the main Alaskan range. This is a land of snow-streaked volcanoes.

The climate resembles that of Iceland; mean temperature, July, 50 degrees; January, 35. Rainfall is heavy, and clouds and fog are almost constant. All summer long the fog lies thick over the land. During the winter, gales lash the seas.

Practically treeless, the islands are rich in berry-bearing shrubs. The Aleutian natives live in rude huts and spear fish. Indians and Eskimos in the interior live on reindeer, while the Aleuts, for the most part, make their living at fishing. It may be said with a full degree of certainty that this is one place in the world where the fishing is usually very good. There is no need for alibis.

Trouble Starts for Aleuts.

Things were going along nicely for the Aleuts up to the time of the Japanese invasion, and then their whole world began tumbling about their ears; the war had come to the Far North!

It was almost unthinkable, a few years ago, that this land of fog and JAP ZERO COMES TO NAUGHT . . . Somewhere in the barren Aleutian islands, this Japanese Zero fighter plane finds its final resting place. Downed by defenders during a recent raid, its battered remains are shown being examined. The plywood "belly tank," for gas to give it greater range, lies in the foreground.

400 tons of steel and TNT into Jap shipping and shore installations in Kiska harbor, wreaking great havoc on Jap ammunition and oil dumps, and on her runways for land-based planes.

Battle of Kiska Unique.

The battle of Kiska was one of the few battles in this greatest of all wars where ships went to bat in the old-fashioned way, relying on the punch of their guns. The navy's drive right up to Kiska's enemy guns was nothing short of brazen and has few, if any, parallels in the history of naval warfare. It was a hit and run attack built on sheer nerve and courage, but it more than accomplished its objective. Pearl Harbor was a stab in the back. The Kiska attack was not an act of national treachery, but a bold frontal assault which should have been expected, but evidently was not. The Japs were as completely surprised as the U. S. forces were at Pearl Harbor.

American submarines, too, have done splendid work in the Aleutian area, having sent many Jap cargo vessels, transports and warships to the bottom.

The Jap invasion of the Aleutian islands is a constant threat to Alas-cost the U. S. some brave fliers and some good bombers. It is a constant fight with the weather, and fogs and mountains have taken a bigger toll of our planes and fliers than have the Japs.

Some are of the opinion that the Japs may be holding Kiska to guarantee their position in northern waters, from which they take great quantities of fish with which to feed the empire of Japan. This view is not held by Sen. M. C. Wallgren (D) of Washington, member of the military affairs subcommittee that visited Alaska. Senator Wallgren claims that the Japs must be driven from the Aleutians before a North Pacific offensive can be launched. Wallgren said: "Occupation of three of the larger islands at the tip of the Aleutian chain puts the Japs squarely across our bridge to Russia."

The Japs must be persuaded with gunfire and bombs (the only language they understand) that the Aleutian islands are unhealthy for any but Aleuts and Americans, and this is being done as fast as feasible. At present the Japs menace Alaska, and Alaska is of strategic importance to the safety of continental United States. Alaska lies athwart any Jap invasion of this continent, and is the route by which America may most easily strike against Japan and pay off some old scores. And yet, the only way to get supplies and men to this vital area is by plane or boat.

America's Burma Road.

Very fortunately for Alaska and America, the Alaskan highway is now well under construction. This highway, the greatest wilderness undertaking in American history, will enable the U. S. to rush munitions to guard the bases that lie closest to Japan. Today 30,000 bulldozers and logging crews are hacking a wide swath into MacDonal's Wilderness, creating a corridor for troops and equipment to roll to the Far North. This highway will link the U. S. to its Arctic outpost, and will be of immense strategic importance.

We may all be grateful that Donald MacDonald, an elderly engineer, was so determined in his purpose to get a highway through to Alaska. As if gifted with prophetic vision, for 20 years MacDonald promoted the idea. To prove that his idea was sound and perfectly feasible he made a trip to Alaska on foot, at great personal danger. While an Alaskan highway commission was created some years ago, with MacDonald as one of its members, it was not until December 7, 1941, that anything was done about building the highway. The attack on Pearl Harbor brought into sharp relief the military importance of a highway to this northern U. S. outpost—and America's Burma Road was begun.

Work Proceeds Apace.

The highway was started at Dawson Creek, just across the British Columbia line from Alberta, and will extend along the east side of the Rockies. The work is now proceeding apace, the ring of the axe and the blast of dynamite now being familiar sounds in wilderness fastnesses which for centuries knew only the howl of the timber wolf and the crashing of the brush as the lordly moose went by.

Uncle Sam has a way of getting things done in a big way, when he rolls up his sleeves, and while this is a stupendous undertaking, it will not be so very long before the North American lifeline to Alaska will be an accomplished fact—one more gigantic stride in the direction of the conquest of ambitious Japan. When completed, soldiers and armored equipment will reach Fairbanks in 80 hours from Edmonton, Alberta.

This trip by ocean from Seattle, takes eight days to Anchorage and another day to Fairbanks. The cost of the highway will be $40,000,000—less than the cost of one battleship.

Brig. Gen. William Morris Hoge is in charge of the construction of the highway, which follows almost mile for mile the route MacDonald blazed through the forest fastnesses years ago. The men on the construction job are living much as our forefathers did, depending to a considerable extent upon their ability as hunters and fishermen. Surrounding forests provide both fuel and shelter.

Husband's 14 Dogs

Too Many to Feed

TOLEDO.—Fourteen dogs were listed as the basis for a divorce in a petition filed here by Mrs. Clara Rose against Frank A. Rose.

Mrs. Rose said her husband insisted on keeping the 14 dogs at their home and forced her to cook for them when there was not sufficient food for her and daughter.

THE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Harriet:

I have not heard from you in a couple of weeks now. What is the matter? I know you are in the WAACS but you are so quiet I wonder if you are in the guardhouse. I can't sleep nights from worrying over whether you have talked back to Ovetta Culp Hobby or somebody. Write me at once while my morale can still be saved.

I just wrote a piece for Yank, the A.E.F. paper. It is about more of Purkey's Peace Plans. I have got to think up some new idea. I got a idea for Hitler's punishment, I would have him sentenced to paper the Great Wall of China using paste which has been so diluted that it won't stick. Mussolini we can forget now. He is such a strain on Hitler that maybe we should give him a medal for an assist after the war and just use him for blowing up tires.

There is just one thing that will punish Japan enough. That is to confiscate all cameras in the country and forbid any imports of them. A Jap never suffers so much as when he is going around with no camera.

Some of these Purkey Peace Plans which I sent to Yank are as follows:

1—A world commission to check up every ten days and see that nobody is working on any new plans for a new order anywhere.

2—Nobody on the losing side is to be allowed to write a book, start a secret society or get hold of a gavel.

3—The Peace Commission has got to pass a agreement for immediate action by force the minute anybody in Europe or Asia is found to be working on a new emblem.

4—All use of airplanes for bombing has got to be ruled out and in the case of Germany she has got to be stopped from even fooling around with boxkites, gliders and plane models.

5—The first delegate from any nation to a League of Nations meeting who gets up and starts using double talk instead of plain language whenever any member starts jumping on some small nation must be boiled in oil.

6—The United States must keep all its scrap iron at home just in case for the next 50 years and we can sell Japan nothing except waste rags to stuff in the extra slots with the Japs have put in all army shoes for big toes.

7—Tokyo is to be renamed Midway Center.

8—Berlin is to be rechristened New Hyde Park.

9—Herman Goering is to be sentenced to spend his life as a free balloon.

10—I got a great idea about Goebels. The Peace Conditions must make him keep talking. Nothing will sound funnier and do more to make Germany sorry.

I got some other things I would like to see happen as a result of the war. I wish along with all the other freedoms it could free us from paper napkins, paper towels, musical auto horns, No Parking signs, James Caesar Petrillo, watered orange juice, photo finishes, new vitamins, long-winded radio commercials and girls who don't write their boy friends twice a week.

All my love,
Oscar.

The Tax Office Speaks

We've taxed you on your earnings—
We've taxed you on your time;
We've taxed you on your taxes—
We haven't left a dime.

We've taxed you high for living—
You're taxed when you are dead;
And now we're gonna tax you
For being in the red!

ALL DONE BY MIRRORS

"He was convicted in April, 1941, of evading taxes of half a million dollars and sentenced to three years. Later his tax evasion sentence was suspended and he was allowed to plead guilty to a lesser charge and sentenced to a year in prison. Blind Man Saves Self in Tumble

Grasps Wire and Hangs on Till Help Comes.

CHICAGO.—Robert Henneman, who is blind, fell off his third-story back porch. He clutched instinctively at space and found an insulated electrical wire in his hand. He kicked, and his feet came to rest upon a heavy cable below.

"Call the police, Clarice," he told his wife. "Call the firemen. I can hang on here O. K."

To assure his wife that there was nothing to be excited about, he let go of the wire with one hand, pulled out his pipe, filled it and calmly lit it. Mrs. Henneman, who is almost blind, saw that he was safe for the moment and called firemen to their home.

Capt. Robert Casey came with Chicago's hook and ladder company 48. The firemen found Henneman still smoking his pipe among the wires which run past his porch. John Henneman, his father, had already piled bed springs beneath him, and advised him to jump upon them, but the blind man only kept on puffing his pipe.

While the firemen prepared to rescue Henneman his wife explained what had happened. They had been measuring the porch, which was wet from rain, when Henneman slipped. He fell over the low railing. She thought he had plunged to his death until she heard his voice and her weak eyes discerned him lodged among the wires.

The firemen spread a net beneath him for safety, but warned him not to jump. They warned him, too, that just above him was a wire carrying 2,200 volts of electricity, insulated, but nothing to experiment with. Then they ran up a ladder and carried Henneman down. He was still clutching the pipe between his teeth and beaming with a calm befitting his 32 years. But he was blowing no smoke rings. He pipe was out. He'd been up there 16 minutes.

A Soldier Can Kiss and Kiss in Macon

MACON, GA.—The good-night kiss of a soldier and his date is not disorderly conduct in Macon, ruled Recorder George M. Nottingham, a veteran of the First World war.

An 18-year-old Macon girl and her 22-year-old army air force soldier date were charged with disorderly conduct by the girl's parents on the young couple's return from a movie. "If I'm guilty of being disorderly, then every man in Uncle Sam's army belongs in jail," the young soldier told reporters as he waited to be called by the court. "And if every girl who kisses a soldier-sweetheart goodnight is going to be locked up, this is going to be a mighty dull war."

After hearing the evidence, Judge Nottingham smiled and ordered "case dismissed."

Gift of Fiancee Saves

Life of American Sailor

MINNEAPOLIS.—Richard H. Bachman, Excelsior, Minn., gives his fiancee credit for saving his life when Japanese planes attacked the aircraft carrier Lexington in the Coral sea.

Although she was 12,000 miles away, Bachman said Anna Lee Etchison's gift—a metal cigarette case which he carried in his dungaree pocket—kept him from injury, perhaps death.

It deflected a flying chunk of jagged metal that otherwise might have torn his leg off, Bachman said. Bachman and Miss Etchison, Frederick, Md., were reunited here during his furlough.

Hand Gone, Indian Air Hero Keeps on Firing

MELBOURNE.—Ralph Sam, a full-blooded American Indian, gave his life to get a few extra shots at a Japanese plane, the Melbourne Herald reported.

Sam, a gunner in an American bomber, had a hand shot away during a recent raid on Japanese positions. Unable to handle the machine guns, Sam ignored his wound and used his one hand to fire a revolver at a Japanese Zero plane. But before the pilot could fly back to the base, Sam lost so much blood that he died a few days later.

Attempt to Get Nickel Costs Youth His Life

HOUSTON, TEXAS.—The nickel Joel Torres dropped in a warehouse elevator shaft cost his life.

The 12-year-old lad took the controls of the elevator and descended to within a few feet of the bottom of the shaft. The elevator moved as he tried to squeeze between the walls and crushed him.

solitude would some day become a land of incredible battles in the air and on the sea—that some day along these dangerous fog-bound coasts one of the world's greatest concentrations of cruisers would steam, without the benefit of destroyer smoke-screen and without air support, right up to the enemy's guns on Kiska island, and carry the war to Japan.

U. S. destroyers were in that battle line, too, but they didn't lay down any smoke screen. The Almighty had taken care of that.

The Aleutian islands came into the world spotlight last June when the Japs made their attack on Dutch Harbor from aircraft carriers. This was a hit and run attack, and the carriers disappeared in the mists.

As we now stand, the Japs are occupying Kiska, Attu and Agattu. Kiska island is some 20 miles long, and is separated from Little Kiska by a narrow strait. Kiska appears to be the main Jap stronghold in this area. When the Japs moved in they renamed this island Narukami.

Narukami—or Kiska, as we prefer to call it—has had considerable attention from the U. S. navy since the Japs took possession under cover of Kiska's fogs. For, on the very same day the battle for the Solomon islands began at the other end of the world, a U. S. navy task force glided through the fog almost up to the very guns of the invaders and hurled ka and American cities, and while the navy has done remarkable work up to the time, it may take a combined land and sea operation to get them out. When the occupation of the Aleutians first was made it was assumed that such occupation was merely a face-saving gesture to pacify the Son of Heaven in Tokyo for the bombing of the Japanese capital. But as the invasion persisted and grew in force this idea was abandoned, and the real danger to America in the presence of the Japs in the Aleutians became apparent.

10,000 Japs on Kiska.

It has been estimated that at least 10,000 Japs have occupied the island of Kiska alone. Many of these, no doubt, have been taken care of by the fleet's heavy guns and by the navy's big Catalina flying boats and the army's B-17 and B-24 bombers, that dare the dangers of fog and mountain to dump their loads of explosive on the venturesome Japs. The "Cats," condemned by some as slow, lumbering and outmoded, have been the hero planes in the defense of Alaska, searching out the Japs in hide-away islands, and spending endless gruelling hours on patrol duty. When the "Cats" and the Flying Fortresses go roaring through the "soup," as the fog is called in Alaska, there is hell to pay on Kiska.

However, trying to bomb the Japs out of the fog-covered Aleutians has Effectiveness of Bombing Nazi Supply Lines . . . Yank Fighter Planes Can Take It . . .

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

WASHINGTON.—If the air enthusiasts are right—and there is a very strong probability that they are—hundreds of thousands of lives could be saved by prosecuting the war along the line of their plans instead of "fighting the Boer war over again."

The point is that everyone now gives lip service to Gen. William Mitchell, but actually most of the admirals and generals are still thinking in terms of World War No. 1, if not Civil war strategy.

It would be libelous to print what the generals and admirals say privately about Alexander de Seversky. But De Seversky MAY be right. Any such idea as crushing Germany by air power is resisted mostly by three points to which the admirals and generals cling. One is that the airplane cannot conquer anything—ground troops must move up to occupy. The second is that the bombing of London did not reduce Britain. It only made her fight harder. The third is that Madrid did not fall despite the terrific air raids, which is generally linked with the more recent development that General Field Marshal Erwin Rommel seems to have done pretty well, on the whole, in North Africa, despite United Nations superiority in the air.

The air enthusiasts contend that none of these points is valid in the immediate problem of crushing Germany. The Nazis are now fighting Russia, they point out, with a supply line extending up to 1,500 miles. Tremendous air power, exerted against that supply line, in addition to bombing the factories in western Europe which are producing its materials, would soon be of far more help to Russia than any imaginable second front.

Nazis Admit Helplessness

The Germans are admitting to their own people that they cannot properly resist or properly retaliate against Britain for the present raids against Germany. This is an admission that at the moment the Nazis do not have enough bombing and fighting planes for their campaign in both East and West, not to mention Africa.

The air enthusiasts say that rapidly increasing air strength in the West would soon make a shambles of Germany's production centers, and that there is no better target for precision bombing than a railroad bridge. Or a highway bridge for that matter. The Flying Fortresses have demonstrated what they can do with precision bombing.

It is contended by the British that the Flying Fortresses do not have enough range, or enough carrying power as compared with their own big bombers. The air enthusiasts, though not agreeing that this is sound criticism, point out that the big United States bombers can attend to the northern France and Western Germany objectives, and thus free the longer range and heavier explosive load-carrying British bombers to handle eastern Germany and the supply lines to the Nazi armies fighting in Russia.

Aviation Experts Give Opinions On Various Nations' Planes

Here is the careful conclusion of aviation experts on the merits of airplanes of the warring nations: The British have the best fighter in the world—the Spitfire. It is considerably superior to the latest improved Nazi fighters, which, however, are better than the United States fighters. The Jap Zero fighter is also superior in maneuverability and altitude possibility to the United States fighter planes. BUT—these "inferior" United States fighters invariably, up to now, have destroyed more enemy planes than they have lost. More of that later.

The United States medium bomber, the type used in the attack on Tokyo—a two-engined job—is greatly superior to anything comparable made by any nation in the world.

The very large bombers, including the Flying Fortress, have the critics arguing with each other. The British critics not official army people, but editors of aviation magazines, etc.—insist that they are not as useful as the big British bombers. They are compared with big bombers which carry a much larger load of explosive, and can fly much farther with that load.

The British are thinking in terms of bombing Austria and eastern Germany when they talk about long flights, and they are thinking of the nearer targets in the Reich, such as Bremen and Hamburg and the Ruhr, when they talk about the amount of explosive carried for such missions.

THE Secret OF THE MARSHBANKS

• BY KATHLEEN NORRIS •

W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY SO FAR: Charlotte (Cherry) Rawlings, an orphan since she was seven, had been at Saint Dorothea's school for girls. She knows almost nothing about her early history. Judge Judson Marshbanks, her co-guardian with Emma Haskell, a trained nurse who had taken care of her mother, arranges for her to leave the school, and take up a secretarial position with the wealthy Mrs. Porteous Porter in San Francisco. But first she goes to the Marshbanks mansion. She dines alone with the judge as Fran, his young wife, and his niece, Amy, are dining out. Kelly Coates, an artist, drops in, and Fran and Amy stop on their way out, nodding only casually when Cherry is introduced. It is evident to Cherry that Coates and Fran are interested in each other. As Fran and Amy leave she hears laughing reference to herself and her convent clothes, and is bitter. Her surroundings are luxurious when she goes to work for Mrs. Porter, but soon she finds life most monotonous. Kelly, horseback riding in the park with Fran, stops to talk with her as she is motoring with Mrs. Porter and later sends her a box of candy. Mrs. Porter gives a big party for her niece, Dorothy Page-Smith. Cherry finds Dorothy crying.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER VI

The hours went by; chill daylight came into the room. She got up jaded and weary, bathed and brushed her thick hair and somehow was at breakfast with Emma as usual at eight o'clock. Emma gave her a sharp look as if she thought that even last night's activities should not have left such traces, but she said nothing; both women rustled the morning papers and drank their coffee almost in silence.

The customary miracle of service was going on in the house, was accomplished when Cherry walked through the downstairs rooms at noon after a full, fire-warmed morning in Mrs. Porter's apartment, the ordinary procedure of letters and compliments and telephone calls. The great house had reassumed its aspect of luxurious mausoleum.

Cherry felt stifled. She told Emma she did not want any lunch; for Mrs. Porter, all cheerful restoration and amazing vitality at breakfast, had admitted in mid-morning that she felt sleepy—not one bit tired, but sleepy. So the machinery of the day had been stopped. Cherry was free until late in the afternoon.

She walked toward the Presidio and down its narrow eucalyptus-shaded paths to the cliffs, and so along by the bay shore. Right across the bay, under the arch of the long red bridge, was Sausalito, and somewhere there was Kelly's studio, "Topcote."

Cherry sat down on a wall and stared wistfully at the hills as if her thoughts could cross the miles, and somehow find him and somehow let him know how eager she was to make her apologies. "Topcote" could easily be reached on a long afternoon's walk; it would be but a short half-dozen miles in all. Her fancy began to play.

Some day—her next all-free day—she would start early and walk straight across the bridge, and when she reached the great ramps on the Marin County side, she would ask someone where Spanish Farm Road was, and follow it to some gate or fence that said, "Topcote."

Emma, quiet and stern-faced and impersonal, had to concede herself sufficiently like the rest of human-kind to succumb to a heavy chest cold when changeable March weather was vexing the city, and for a few days the household was seriously alarmed about her. Her old employer was ill too, and a nurse who had often cared for Mrs. Porter was installed in the rooms of the mistress; there was a second nurse as well to relieve the first.

For the little time that Mrs. Porter needed diversion, her nurses read to her or chatted with her and Cherry formed the habit of spending the early evening hours with Emma, as Emma grew convalescent. Although the older woman never acknowledged in words that she liked her companion or missed her or waited for her, Cherry grew to enjoy these evenings, and suspected that Emma did, too.

Emma was about fifty, but she might have been any age between thirty and seventy. Her face was thin, narrow and marked by sternness and reserve. Her graying hair she wore coronet fashion in tight braids in which never a hair was awry.

A strange, cold, repressed woman, Cherry used to think, as Emma, belted into a gray wrapper, sat back panting against her pillows and attacked the day's bills, menus, reports. Cherry brought up a lamp that illumined the ceiling and sent a soft light down for the invalid's eyes, brought up a glass bowl of crocus blossoms and set it on the table, put a Chinese plate of brown bulbs in the sunshiny south window where Emma could employ times of languor in watching their almost hourly change. And finally, shyly, she brought Emma a tiny kitten, a bundle of wet, waiting fur that she had found by the Presidio wall.

Emma laughed a short, scornful laugh at this last contribution. She never could stand cats, she said. But Cherry, noting the confidence with which the small stray, newly warmed and fed, was advancing toward Emma's languid hand, promised with great confidence that she would remove the little creature the minute he became troublesome. From that moment the cat was visibly the absorbing consideration of Emma's life.

"Did you go first to the Marshbanks as a nurse, Emma?" Cherry asked idly one night. Emma looked at her quickly, hesitated before speaking.

"Yes," she answered then. "I'd taken the boys, Fred and Judson, through tonsil operations, and then through scarlet fever, at the hospital when I was in training. The old lady took a liking to me, and when they'd come back from abroad a few years later and I'd been widowed, the old madame—as we used to call Mrs. Marshbanks, though I don't suppose she was more than fifty then—sent for me to take care of the colonel. He'd been struck down with sleeping sickness; he was on a couch for years. Then Miss Louise—she was the only daughter and had married an engineer from Springfield—came home to have the baby. The old lady was so pleased about it—both she and I—so much about the grandchild. And then to have both die—yes, that was a bad time."

"I stayed on as a nurse and housekeeper; I had my sister to support, and it was a comfortable place. I wasn't twenty when I graduated and came to them."

"How'd you know my mother, Emma? Did you meet her at the Marshbanks?"

Emma looked thoughtfully at her companion. "No; I knew her before that," she finally said. And then, after another pause: "Your mother was my sister Charlotte."

Cherry stared at her. The words did not seem to make sense.

"My mother—" she began in a whisper, and stopped.

"Yes. Your mother was my sister. You were named for her. But Emma," Cherry said breathlessly, confusedly conscious of shock and reluctance, "you never told me!"

"Well, you don't always tell children everything," Emma said after a moment. "You weren't but a little thing when your mother died."

"I could have known that!" Cherry exclaimed. A thousand bright dreams vanished with the revelation, and she felt hurt and wronged. But amazement still had first place in her thoughts.

"Maybe I never told you because I didn't think you'd be especially pleased," Emma said dryly. The girl's color came up warmly.

"It's not that! Of course I'm—I'm glad," she stammered. "I've never had any family, and—and of course I'm glad!"

And, immediately, to her own amazement, she burst into tears. She had often imagined what her connections might be; she had never dreamed this. Emma—so contained and cold and distant—her own aunt! Cherry pushed the table away blindly and went to the window, and stood looking out at the dark night, and the far city lights that shot arrows and flashes through her tears.

"Mother—mother never told me!" she stammered. "I wish she had!"

Cherry looked down at her cards with blinded eyes, and made herself move them here and there as if she were playing. She finished her game, and said with a shaking voice that she was tired and thought she would go to bed. Emma still making no comment, Cherry put away the table and asked Emma if there was anything more she could do.

"No," Emma said, "nothing." The girl came to the bedside, looked down.

"Good night then," she added in a light, level tone, with a resolute smile. "Would you—I would if you liked—shall I call you Aunt Emma?" she added hesitatingly.

Emma eyed her steadily for a few long seconds.

"No," I don't know that I'd make any change," she said then, in the same emotionless voice that Cherry had used.

"Need more ice?"

"No; I'm going to listen to the radio and then I'm going to sleep."

"Good night," Cherry said, with a parting second attempt at a pleasant smile.

She walked to her own room, slipped into bed and lay with narrowed eyes and a bitten lower lip, pondering. Thought, long denied, came with a rush, and she was drowned in the bitterness of it.

Other girls had mothers and fathers and homes. And she had—she had only the drab background of Saint Dorothea's and this humiliating revelation tonight!

Slow tears began to creep down Cherry's cheeks; presently she began to sob heavily. She cried herself to sleep.

One morning Cherry found herself free at noon, and determined to take one of the long walks she loved.

She was some blocks away from home when a low-slung, open, disreputable car drew up close to her on the curb and a voice said, "Jump in."

The world wheeled about her for a few dizzy seconds, for it was Kelly Coates who had spoken; he was driving the car and beside him sat Fran Marshbanks smothered in soft fox skins, with a daring red hat topped on her dark hair.

"I want Mrs. Marshbanks to come over and have lunch with me," the man explained it honestly with his wide, flashing smile, "and she won't come unless you do."

"Are you free from those old ogres for a while?" Fran asked in her careless, fascinating, hoarse voice.

"I'm free until half past four," Cherry did not want to go and yet was wild with eagerness to go. The thought that he was in love with Fran made being in Kelly's company exquisitely painful to her, but she had hungered to see these persons again, to be one of them, to know what was going on, and this golden opportunity would not come twice.

"I'd love to," she said, smiling as she climbed in and wedged herself snugly beside Fran. The moment she did it she regretted it, wondering through what fatuity of complacency she had accepted the invitation to play a third in their affair. Why had they asked her? she wondered.

"Mrs. Marshbanks," Kelly said, "once went to a movie in which a girl visited an artist in his studio, and everything went wrong for fifty years afterward. Was that it, Fran?"

"Something like that," said Fran's exquisite voice lazily.

"So she didn't want to come home and lunch with me," Kelly went on. "Perhaps I know my own weakness," Fran contributed idly.

They crossed the bridge and on the eastern shore moved along a wide, smooth highway for a few miles, turned left and mounted an earth road that wound up the hill. Scattered cottages, hidden among oaks and eucalyptus, faced the road here and there. Kelly's place was at the head of a small tree-lined canyon, and consisted of a cottage of perhaps three rooms, a large white barn, various sheds and fences that suggested that the place had once been a small farm. There was an arbor covered with young grape vines, sheltering a long table and two benches, young berry bushes just in leaf, a languishing little garden whose neglected rose and geranium bushes were choked with last season's dried grass and some apple and apricot trees getting ready to bloom.

Cherry was under the spell of the peace of Kelly Coates' place, its simplicity, its beauty almost before she had gotten out of the car; she had never dreamed of anything so informal, so comfortable, so complete.

They were all hungry; they fell upon preparations for luncheon together. All this went on in the small kitchen, for a bleak wind had blown up from the south and it was too chilly and overcast out of doors for the arbor to be the dining room, much to Kelly's disappointment.

They were very much in love, Kelly and Fran; Cherry could see that. Or at least Kelly was. Perhaps Fran was only pretending; Cherry could not be sure, but this was evidently a game of which she knew every move.

FAITH IN CHRIST AS OUR PERSONAL SAVIOUR

LESSON TEXT—Acts 16:13-15; Romans 5:1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT—Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. Romans 5:1.

Salvation through Christ is the way, and the only way, into the Christian life; therefore, there could be no other subject more suitable than that of our lesson to begin our brief series of "Studies in the Christ Life."

Our lesson for today tells us first how one comes into a personal saving faith, and then gives Paul's statement of the result of saving faith in the changed life of the believer.

I. The Opened Heart (Acts 16:13-15).

Paul and his companions on their important errand for the Master, bearing the news of the gospel, had first known His guidance by hindrance, by the closed door; and then by the direction of the Spirit into the open door, revealed in the vision of the man of Macedonia. Here in Philippi they found not only an open door, but an open heart, one which the Holy Spirit had made ready for the preaching of the Word of God. "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Rom. 10:17).

Note that while Lydia was a woman of ability and culture, and a worshiper of God, yet she needed the message of redemption through faith in Christ.

Lydia evidenced the truth of her profession of faith by open testimony and by a desire for fellowship in putting forward the work of God (v. 15). Salvation is by faith apart from works, but a saving faith is always one which works.

II. The Transformed Life (Rom. 5:1-11).

This is one of the great passages of Scripture, rich in doctrinal instruction, presenting through Paul an illuminating discussion of justification by faith.

This lesson affords an opportunity for teachers to learn and present to classes much needed truth along the line of Bible doctrine. There is not enough teaching of this type. People seem to prefer a little devotional study, or the discussion of current events, possibly in the light of prophecy. These are good, but it is of first importance that Christians be informed regarding doctrine.

We find in this Scripture the glorious transformation of life which comes to the one who takes Christ as Saviour, as we note the seven results of God's justifying grace.

1. Peace (v. 1). The human heart craves spiritual peace and knows that it can be found only when sin has been dealt with and put away. For sin cannot be condoned or ignored. There must be justification, and that can come only through Jesus Christ our Lord.

2. Grace (v. 2). A peace with God brings the peace of God into our hearts. We have that peace because we have by faith come into the place of God's favor. No longer strangers or outsiders, we have come in ("have access") to His place of grace and favor.

3. Hope (vv. 2b, 5a). Our faith not only brings present peace, but causes us to see future glory. Such a hope puts us in a right attitude toward God, and the things of life, including tribulations (v. 3), are rightly valued and understood. Even our troubles become evidences of His love in which we may glory.

4. Love (vv. 5b-8). God's love which gave His Son to die for our sins becomes the "shed abroad" portion of every believer in Him. It was an unmeasurably great love, and it all centers in Calvary.

5. Saved From Wrath (v. 9). The wrath of God is minimized or denied in much modern theology, but it is nonetheless a very "real and awful affection of the divine nature." But the Christ who died for sinners will surely deliver the saints from the wrath of God against sin.

6. Reconciled (v. 10). The death of Christ, which justified man has accepted by faith, brought reconciliation. Atonement had been made for sin, and the One who died is alive again, a living Saviour.

7. Joy (v. 11). And why not? Such a revelation of what our redemption includes should make every believer in Christ rejoice in God. The One who is the sinner's judge is the believer's joy! That is the glorious transformation which takes place when one believes.

Some unbeliever who has read these lines thus far must by now be eager to have these things true in his life. Well, why not? "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31). Then read again those majestic and joyful words in Romans 5:1: "Therefore being justified by faith, we have"—yes, I have "peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ."

HOUSEHOLD TINTS

Children will want to hang up their clothes if the closets are gaily and attractively decorated.

The next time you make corn fritters to serve with chicken add some chopped, cooked bacon or ham to the batter.

Dust is easily removed from reed furniture when a hose is used. Set furniture on the lawn when the sun is shining and play the hose on it.

To remove old wallpaper stir a quart of flour paste into a pail of hot water and apply the mixture to the walls. Being thick it will not dry quickly but will saturate the paper which may be easily scraped or peeled off.

YOUR FRIEND THE DRUGGIST

HE comes in early and stays late. His telephone, like your physician's, is at his bedside, and the key to his store is in his pocket. He puts your health . . . your safety . . . your convenience ahead of his own profits.

Right now he's celebrating Nationally Advertised Brands Week (Oct. 2-12).

Drop in and see how bright and festive his store is. You'll find plenty of things you need . . . merchandise you know . . . believe in and prefer . . . because national advertising has told you about them.

It will also be a good time to tell your friend, the druggist, that you do appreciate the things he does for you. He'll like that. He's as human as the rest of us.

Service Men's News

September 6, 1942

Dear Folks:

The cookies and the cigarettes you sent me just arrived yesterday and I certainly appreciate them. So help me, the cookies are wonderful. Tell all those excellent cooks that they brought back the air of a busy kitchen and the times I've eaten Mother's cookies fresh from the oven. Of all things you folks have done for me, this last is the best. I'll guarantee that they didn't last long here, but they were very much appreciated by all the fellows. They wonder how I rate so much attention. I guess I'm just lucky.

I might as well tell everybody that I'm engaged now to the sweetest and best girl a guy could be lucky enough to have. She's Dorothy Allison of Willow Springs and of all the incentives a fellow might have for doing his darndest in this war, she's the strongest. Now more than ever I've got to fight for Dottie and my own future happiness and the happiness of everyone else back there.

I don't mind admitting that I pray every night for a speedy end to this war and a lasting peace, and I hope you're all doing the same. I'm not fighting yet, but with what I've learned and am now learning, I hope I'll be able to do my best when I get over there and may that be soon. There's not much else to say, I guess. This is a swell field and a wonderful school, and we're cramming a year of training into fifteen short weeks; but when we get out of here we'll know our stuff, gut good.

Best regards to everyone.

Sincerely,
Allan M. Boner

Citizens Committee for Servicemen.

To whom it may concern:

Received the box of cookies when we docked yesterday, from our patrol. Boy they were sure good and it was a change to home made cooking from canned stuff put up by consumers. They were badly mangled but we managed. Who ever made them sure can cook or me anytime. The box was forwarded from Newport to where I am now stationed and I must say it's really a dead place.

We do patrol duty here. Since I've written to you I've been transferred to a boat or a sub-chaser in other words. We patrol the south end of this Island and no man's land. The Wineryard is about 21 miles long and 9 miles wide. Boy it sure is good to see land after three days out and then we only have one day in and then we're right out again. We have a crew of five men and one is in the hospital now with appendicitis. It's getting so cold out on patrol that I wrote home to see if my mother wouldn't send me our small feather quilt and I hope she sends it. There are not many service men up here except for the few Army fellows that have a station here and the few Coast Guards that patrol the beaches. Well I have to go up and see the fellow in the hospital and bring his check to him. Boy I hope I see a Government check soon. I'll write soon again

Yours truly,
Irving Bettenhausen, A. S., U. S. Coast Guard Detail, Vineyard Haven, Mass.
P. S. The crew said that those were some of the best cookies that they had ever eaten.

Dear Citizens Comm.

I want to thank you for the cigarettes and cookies, sure was glad to get them they sure were good. I have been receiving the Times regularly since I have been here in Fort Eustis, Va. about 3 months and sure do enjoy it, and is almost like being at home, except for my wife and home folks.

All the boys are gone but me that I came down with but have lots of other friends here. It isn't so bad. I like Fort Eustis fine, hope I can remain here, the Superior officers are swell too and that means lots in this man's Army, good old USA. I want to thank you all again for all you have done for me and all the other soldiers that are in the Armed forces.

I remain your friend,
Pvt. Walter W. Diekmann, Btry. D, 2nd Battalion, Fort Eustis, Va.

HOMER

By Mrs. Kopelman

Mr. and Mrs. Frank are the parents of seven children, two daughters, Mrs. Josephine Wies, Miss Violet Frank and 5 sons, Leonard of Joliet, Fred of Chicago, Geo. of Homer, Corp. John and Corp. Clarence all of whom were with them on this happy occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Winke entertained a group of relatives Friday night in honor of their son Corp. John Winke who had been enjoying a furlough here.

Miss Evelyn Cutler and Miss Jeanne Frazer were accepted as new members of the Upsilon Gamma chapter of the Beta Sigma Phi sorority at the meeting in Joliet recently. Miss Cutler was appointed chairman of the program committee.

The Maple Street Arbor of Gleaners will sponsor a dance at the Frank fort gym Friday evening, Oct. 2.

Mrs. Eliz. Anderson returned home Wednesday after attending the three day conference of the Women's Fellowship of the Northern area at Sterling.

The Modern Woodman of America held their monthly business meeting in the hall Wednesday night. Refreshments were served by Thomas Welter and Lawrence Doctor. The next committee will be Adolph Haley and George Ott.

The Missionary Society met Thursday in the home of Mrs. Harper Reid. Mrs. George Ott and Mrs. Walter Ott were the assisting hostesses. Plans were made for the festival and chicken pie supper to be held at the church one week earlier than formerly scheduled, Thursday, evening, Oct. 8.

At the regular Sunday morning services, an American flag and a Christian flag was dedicated, also 6 stars were added to the Community service flag representing Lloyd Relfer, Emil Myers, Howard Jungles, Sylvester Hostert, LaVerne Schubert and Peter Zerkies, who have been added to the armed forces since the dedication of the flag on July 27.

Miss Rachael Ann Bridges furnished the special music. Next Sunday Mrs. Fred Paddock will be in charge of the special music.

Mrs. Wray White and son Warren and Larry have returned from a six weeks trip in Minnesota.

Otto Konow, Sr., Joseph Miller, Sr. Walter Jungles have returned from a two weeks fishing trip in Wisconsin.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Bump attended the wedding of their niece Miss Eleanor Malsky, and Glen Myers Sunday afternoon at the Willow Avenue Presbyterian church, Joliet. A reception followed and was held at Carnegie Hall in Joliet.

Mrs. Henry Rodgers who has been ill, is much improved.

Mr. Henry Burch who has been spending several weeks with his son Ralph and family in Wisconsin, returned home Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Carlson went to Wisconsin and accompanied Mr. Burch home.

Pvt. Robert Zeisemer is enjoying a 10 day furlough from his duties at Camp Davis, N. Carolina.

Corp. John E. Frank and Corp. Clarence L. Frank have been enjoying 10 day furlough at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Frank here. Corp. John Frank is stationed at Co E, 53rd Engineering Bn, APO 258, US Army, Fort Knox Kentucky, and Corp. Clarence is stationed at 131 Qm. Co., Camp Pendleton, Va. and can be reached at those addresses. It so happened that Jack celebrated his birthday anniversary, on Sept. 16 and Clarence on Sept. 21 both at home and they were also at home to help celebrate their mother and father's golden wedding anniversary Sept. 16.

Thursday evening a large crowd of friends and relatives gathered at the Frank home and enjoyed an evening of visiting and cards.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kopelman entertained at dinner Sunday the following friends: Mr. and Mrs. James Phillips, Sr. and sons Melvin, Geo. and Robert, daughters Peggy and Vivian, Mr. and Mrs. James Phillips, Jr. all of Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Depra and daughter of Lockport, Earl and Eleanor Kopelman.

The Wayside Workers Circle of Kings Daughters will meet Thursday in the home of Mrs. Guy Bump with Mrs. Harry Parker assisting and election of officers will be held.

Several from this vicinity attended the wedding of Norman White, son of Mr and Mrs. Ross White and Marcella Harris of Lockport.

Miss Harris was attractively gowned in white satin and her bridesmaid Miss Bernice White, sister of the groom was very lovely in blue satin with finger tip veil.

Norman was attended by his friend Frank Ohla, Glen White, brother of the groom, and Frances Aspel were the ushers.

A reception for 15 members of the families was held.

Miss Roxie Humphrey of the Joliet High school faculty was a dinner guest Sunday of her friend Miss Jean Rowley.

"Good Night Ladies" At Blackstone

After listening for weeks to the second guessers and self styled public pulse feelers advance theories on the record breaking success of "Good Night Ladies" at Chicago Blackstone theater, producers Howard Lang and Al Rosen have reasoned that now after 24 weeks of sensational business, it would be fair and timely to submit their private analysis.

It's no longer a secret that the farce comedy has been the phenomena of the road since its inception in San Francisco. Broadway's very best slickers on public reactions have excused to Chicago to make out the answer, and a half dozen movie shoppers have found reasons to come here and toss in offers for the film rights to this hit of the year.

Sums up impresarios Lang and Rosen: "It's what they want... a funny show, funnier, in its nonsensical way than anything uncovered in the last decade. You see, our play has no message, we never meant it to adjust the world's crisis, and started out to create an entertainment that was all amusement. It would be a staggering bore to any one who is allergic to laughing. The calculating analysts are fair enough to admit that we have devised a new high in escapism fun. That was the goal. So we win, even by the concession of a strange breed who insist on discovering the answers to everything."

The success of "Good Night Ladies" can be credited to a knowledge of stand out public choices during the first World War they cite, when the hysterical brand of nonsense reigned in the theatre. Laugh plays stole the stage. Frankness sprung boldly behind the footlights. It became the era of diversion seekers yearning for the pleasures that relieve taunt nerves and exhausted energies.

Thus the co-producers describe their private opinions of their farce discovery, which co-stars Buddy Ebsen and Skeets Gallagher with a stage full of pulchritude recruited from the Broadway stage and Hollywood studios.

ONE-TWO-THREE-FOUR-FIVE-SUGGESTIONS...to help you make better use of your NEW Telephone Directory

We try to make your telephone directory accurate and complete. These five suggestions, if followed, will increase its usefulness.

- 1 Be sure to discard your OLD telephone directory if it was not collected when the new one was delivered. (Don't destroy it—turn it over with other waste paper to your regular collector.)
- 2 If you have a memo list of numbers called frequently, verify these numbers now by looking in your NEW directory.
- 3 Always consult the directory when not sure of the number.

Calling from memory is a common cause of wrong numbers.

4 Look in your directory—don't ask "Information" for numbers listed there. This avoids making two calls instead of one.

5 Use the "Classified" section (yellow pages in most directories) to locate wanted products, services or professional help—especially important now that substitutes must be found.

ROUND up your scrap metal—it's needed to make steel. Steel for armor plate to protect him from bombs and bullets. Steel for weapons to help him do the job that must be done before he can come home again.

You don't want production figures. It's enough to know that 50% of all new steel is made of scrap—that our steel mills now have only enough scrap in sight to last another 30 days at the most!

What happens after that depends on all of us. If production falls and you've not done your part, will you rest easy?

Next week we're starting a collection drive—to build the biggest stockpile of scrap metal you've ever seen. Then when the mills need it, we'll have it—because you came through... for his sake!

BLACKOUT

Just turn out lights... don't pull main switch

Pulling main switches needlessly reduces the efficient operation of a home. There are many electric appliances that serve a vital household function without casting a light. Ranges, oil burners, water heaters, refrigerators, clocks, radios—any break in their operation lessens the efficiency of the home.

Make your home livable during blackouts

A blackout, especially a long one, may have a harmful, depressing effect on your family—unless some part of your home is specially prepared for living under blackout conditions.

You may want to select one room as a "refuge room," and black out its windows so that the family can gather in cheerful surroundings. Also, you may want to black out the bathroom window. It's a good idea to make the same preparations for your kitchen, too, in case of a prolonged blackout.

Write out your "blackout schedule"

Don't leave the blacking out of your home to chance. Make a list of all the things that have to be done. Appoint one member of the family to be responsible, with a substitute to serve in his absence.

If you plan to be away from home during the evening, and wish to leave a light burning, be sure to make some arrangement with a neighbor. Remember, even "practice" blackouts may come without warning!

SEE

THE CORN YOU BUY

With hybrid corn, the important thing is NOT where the seed was grown, but how it performs where you plant it. The best way to compare varieties and decide which ones suit you the best is to see them growing side by side in a soil and climate similar to yours. That's why DeKalb has more than 3300 proving grounds or demonstration fields, scattered throughout the corn-growing areas.

Another reason why you should visit your DeKalb proving ground is to keep acquainted with the newest varieties that DeKalb is continually perfecting. Be sure to visit the DeKalb proving ground in your neighborhood. Your DeKalb dealer will be glad to show you the varieties that you are interested in and what they will do for you on YOUR FARM.

The Red Cross sewing class met with Mrs. Harry Pihl on 108th Ave., Wednesday, September 23. She was assisted by a committee consisting of Mrs. Jean Lindquist, Mrs. Jessie Kay, and Mrs. Elsie Cooper who served a delicious luncheon to the 23 ladies present. Mrs. Ella Loebe, Production chairman of the Orland Park unit reported that when the 20 dresses the ladies were then working on were completed and turned in, it would make a total of 70 dresses that the class will have made. In addition to these a large number of sweaters, scarfs, socks and baby articles have been completed by the class. Special commendation has been made by Chicago Chapter officials on the fine quality of work the unit has been turning out.

The next meeting of the class will be October 7 at the home of Mrs. B. J. Rooth on Will Cook Road and all members of the unit and any lady in our community who can sew or knit and wishes to join in this helpful service are invited to attend.

At a meeting of the executive board of the Orland Park Legion Auxiliary last Friday, Mrs. Alice Sorley submitted her resignation as Secretary. Because of the fact that her husband Dr. Milford Soley is on active duty as Major in command of the Dental corps unit at Camp Custer, Mich. Mrs. Sorley felt that her plans would be too indefinite to allow her to give full attention to the duties of that office. She will however continue her activities as rehabilitation chairman. Her resignation was accepted and Pres. Elsie Yunker appointed. Mrs. Maymie Estland to serve as Secretary for the balance of the year.

The newly elected Officers of Orland Park Post 526 met at the Legion Hall last Monday, to make arrangements for the ceremonies of their installation on Tuesday evening, October 13, in the Legion Hall. Departing from the custom of the past few years this will be a "stag" affair for Legionnaires only. Walter Stansel, Commander of the 8th Legion District will be installing officer and will be assisted by the members of his staff. An invitation will be extended to the officers and members of the surrounding posts. There will be appetizing eats in profusion and refreshments galore and a very enjoyable evening is anticipated.

Harry Rauch will be the new commander and the staff of officers to be installed is: Sr. Vice Commander Wm. Myrick; Jr. Vice Commander, George Sayers; Adjutant, Sherman

S. Knox; Finance Officer, Ray Doctor; Chaplain, Thomas Cooper; Service Officer, VanBuren Knox; Sgt. at Arms, John Busch.

Especially to all those people who have boys serving in the army, navy, marine or air corps. Packages out of this country should be mailed not later than November 1 so they can be received by Christmas. Don't forget these boys and write them as often as you can. I understand candy gum, handkerchiefs and cigarettes are impossible to get so that will probably help someone who is wondering just what to send their boys.

Don't forget the luncheon and rummage sale sponsored by the Ladies Aid of the Palos Community church to be held October 13 at the church. Come prepared to buy many useful articles and enjoy the luncheon and all home made bakery goods. Mr. and Mrs. John H. Wangerow and the latter's father of Chicago spent Sunday evening visiting Mrs. Jessie L. Mains and Dorothy.

Mrs. Frank Powell is a new member of the sick list. She is laid up with intestinal flu so the Weir school was closed the first part of the week. The Palos Juniors will hold their regular meeting Friday evening at the Village hall. Everyone with pledges are invited to attend. The membership of the club grows smaller every year due to marriages. Ruby Stockdale married Owen Creer, Louise Kriz married Cyril Kay and Shirley Harris married Edwin Yunker last Sunday.

The party sponsored by the Palos Woman's Club at the Service Men's Recreation Center at 1249 S. Wabash last Friday evening was a huge success. 285 service men were served with home made cakes, milk and coffee. The boys said it was just like home to have all the delicious cakes and all free! Mrs. Irving Pronger wishes to thank the members and friends for their donations to the committee for helping her, the women and many husbands who attended to help cheer the boys. It is a great work these different clubs are doing for the boys to take away a little bit of that old man homesickness. No one can realize how much these men enjoy a talk with an older woman or man and they take them in just like their own parents. They enjoy all the home cooked food for you know army food no matter how good it is, can get terribly tiresome. Keep up the good work Woman's Clubs. The boys thank you.

Irene Siler of Lemont and Mrs. George Lempere were recent visitors at the Weir home.

The Palos members of the Elm chapter Order of the Eastern Star of Blue Island, announce that the organization will hold their fall bazaar at the Masonic Temple in Blue Island October 3. Cards and buncos starting at 2 p.m. Booths displaying aprons, fancy goods, rugs, bakery goods and many other articles will be sold. From 6 to 7:30 p.m. a delicious dinner will be served, followed by bingo. Everyone is cordially invited to attend, so for an afternoon and evening of fun and gaiety be sure and attend.

A wedding reception was held Sunday evening at the Palos Park Village hall for Shirley Harris who became the bride of Erwin Yunker of Orland Park at Mokena. Many friends and relatives of this couple attended and extended their best wishes for many years of happily wedded life together. The happy couple left for a honeymoon trip after which they will live in Orland in the new home that is now under construction.

Mrs. Ray Robson and daughter Martha of Chicago spent one day visiting Mrs. Frank Yunker and family last week.

LeRoy Stockdale was among the group of boys that left for service in Uncle Sam's Army Monday morning from Draft Board No. 10 in Orland. Good Luck LeRoy and come home safely.

Gordon Powell is over his illness and has returned to his studies at Orland Park high school. The Powell family had a hen come off with 8 chicks. It is pretty late so Beverly you better make some wool stockings for the babies or they will freeze their toes off.

SCHEDULE FOR OCTOBER 5

Alleys 1 & 2 Oilers vs. V-Eighters

Alleys 3 & 4 Paperhangers vs. Bankers.

Alleys 5 & 6 Smokers vs. Robins.

Cooper & Hostert and Braun's Recreation kept pace for the lead last Monday night when the V-Eighters took two games from the Bankers and the Smokers trimmed the Paperhangers two games. The Mo-kenas took sole possession of third place in the standings by taking two games from the Robins. N. Thran's 590 series was one of the high lights of the night and boosted him to lead the league in averages as H. Spiess dropped from the lead with a poor series and landed fourth in the standings. Chief Oiler Burkhardt came thru with a 203 game and E. Walsh smoked his way to a 197 game.

Wednesday Sept. 30th a party was given at Eileen Walsh's home for the Brownies. Games were played and refreshments were served at a very lovely decorated table. The Brownies attending the party were: Dorothy Kohl, Anita Geuther, Jean Skeeze, Ursula Thiel, Carol Benson, Shirley Jones, Patsy Steel, Elaine Spiess, Joanne Martie, Dorothy Ann Rauch, Alice Sizer. The hostesses were Eileen Nelson, Lois Hudson and the Brownies leader, Mrs. Ferguson.

Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Rowe and daughters Dorothy and Prudence have moved back into their home here after residing in Peoria for two years.

Mrs. Albert Cooper of Rockford spent a few days here with friends and relatives. While here she attended the Episcopal church annual Harvest Festival.

Mrs. Esther Carlson spent last week end in Chicago with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Clark of Los Angeles, California arrived here on Monday for a two weeks vacation to be spent with relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Ewing and sons spent Sunday in Urbana at the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Frantz. The affair was a birthday dinner honoring their mother, Mrs. Frantz of Ridge Farm, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Merfeld celebrated their wedding anniversary and Mr. Merfeld's birthday at a gathering in their home Saturday night. Guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Milton Harnack, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Torrence, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Ewing.

Let's Have a Real Football Supper!
(See Recipes Below.)

Football Supper

Thoughts for fall naturally bring to mind fall's favorite game, football, and foods that go well after the game. It makes no difference whether you have been to one of the big games or whether you are going to feed the hungry crowd of youngsters who come in from playing in the nearest available field, the uppermost thought in your mind is good, hot, appetizing food.

Smart management dictates a delicious hot dish that you whisk out of the oven, a crisp salad for balance and contrast to the meal, and a smooth, light dessert. Your crowd will be thirsty, too, so don't forget coffee for the grown-ups and a hot, chocolaty drink for the children.

Do something special for the table—even a little touching-up will bring the appreciative oh's and ah's from your family and guests. Perhaps there are a few chrysanthemums still in the garden or you might try to get together a few, small novelty footballs to make up into a centerpiece. A cloth in the burnished fall colors or deep brown, bright yellow, or what-have-you will mark you as a hostess whose eye is ever on the calendar and season.

Bring on the food! And such food it will be if you serve spaghetti, done up in casserole with plenty of sauce and cheese for extra goodness:

*Spaghetti Creole.

(Serves 8)
2 pounds long spaghetti
2 onions, chopped
1 clove garlic
¼ cup butter
¼ cup oil
2 cans tomato puree
2½ cups tomatoes
2 teaspoons worcestershire sauce
Salt, pepper
1 pound ground beef
Grated cheese

Cook onion and garlic (peeled and a toothpick run through it) in the hot oil and butter, slowly. Remove garlic. Add tomato puree, tomatoes, worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper. Cook meat in additional fat. Add to first mixture and cook very slowly for two hours. Cook spaghetti in boiling, salted water. Drain and rinse in hot water. Place in buttered casserole, first spaghetti layer, then sauce, grated cheese, and so on until casserole is full. Garnish with an additional slice of bacon if desired. Bake in a slow (325-degree) oven 45 minutes.

Contrast note to the Spaghetti Creole is a green vegetable chilled to a crispness. It's also a good idea to balance a starchy food with something as full of minerals and vitamins as an armload of greens clinging together with a light, tart french dressing:

*Tossed Greens.

Wash lettuce and separate into leaves. Use several large spinach leaves, carefully washed, and shredded with the lettuce leaves, or small spinach leaves used whole among the lettuce. Shred three carrots, mince one small onion and toss among the greens. Marinate 1 cup

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: The secretary of agriculture, Claude Wickard, has announced that meat rationing days are in prospect, so learn now, how to cut down on meats. Fewer meat cuts will be available, so be prepared to learn how to do many different things with what you have. Eggs, cheese and fish are obtainable at moderate prices and are wonderful props in place of meat, and are all rich sources of protein which is one of the main values of meat. Tea supplies are short, so it's suggested you dispense with the one teaspoon per pot measure as a means of saving.

The Right Time

By

R. H. WILKINSON

Associated Newspapers—WNU Features.

FOR nearly half a century, Vic Dobbs has been the political leader of Bellows Corners," said Hank Grant. "He's honest, but like all politicians, he has had to resort at times to let us call it strategy—to maintain his position. Outstanding among these was when Stanley Lee came back from college, and, after operating a law firm for a couple of years, decided that the town needed a change in administration, and announced his candidacy for mayor against Vic.

"Now Stanley wasn't a native of Bellows Corners, and this was against him. He had come there with his family ten years before, remained four years, spent another four at college, and later returned to establish himself in the law business.

"Folks didn't know him very well, but they recognized his ability and there was a certain element who wanted Vic ousted and a smart young man like Stanley put in his place, a man who would listen to reason and hark to the demands of prominent citizens. Of course this later qualification was never mentioned, but everyone knew it existed and everyone knew it was Hugh Layton, head of the Layton Textile mill, that would run the town once Stanley was elected.

"Stanley was smart, like I said, and possessed a remarkable vocabulary. Stanley's main issue concerned the matter of dumping dye into the Bellows river by the Layton Textile mill. For years Vic Dobbs fought and succeeded in keeping such a proposition in the background. Polluting the river with dye, he contended, would kill the fish and make the water unfit for bathing and drinking, which was a noble stand to take, even though everyone knew that Vic loved to go fishing and the Bellows river was the only body of water anywhere around.

"There was, however, a lot to be said on Hugh Layton's side, for Hugh contended that if he were able to dump dye into the river it would save him thousands of dollars yearly in solving his disposal problem, enable him to expand his mill, produce more goods, hire more help and thereby benefit the town in more ways than one.

"Before the campaign was well under way, the issue of dumping dye into the Bellows river became the one and only issue worth mentioning. And because Stanley Lee was an orator of the first water it began to look as though Vic's career as political leader of Bellows Corners was near an end.

"Vic was no soap box speech-maker. He depended largely on the chummy get-togethers between himself and a few of his cronies, or spending an evening with so-and-so, and an afternoon fishing with this one or that one, and meeting Mrs. Jones on the street, and remarking how cute her offspring looked. It was an old and worn-out system and Vic knew he was being licked.

"But he didn't give up hope. Not by a long shot. He knew that the town would suffer if Stanley Lee were elected, despite all the flimflamming about larger mills and more help and so forth. And so he began harping on the two things that were in his favor, the first being that Stanley Lee was not a native and probably didn't give a dang one way or another whether the river was polluted by dye, and the second being the new fire alarm.

"Now the fire alarm was an important item. It had been installed six months ago by popular subscription. Vic Dobbs had contributed the largest sum from his own pocket, when it looked as if there weren't going to be anywhere near enough in the general fund to make the purchase. It was a fine new fire alarm, a siren, painted red and with a voice that reached to the farthest bounds of Bellows Corners. The citizens were proud of it, and grateful to Vic for his large personal contribution.

"At the time of its purchase they would have voted for Vic unananimously; but now, with the dye issue freshened in their minds by Stanley Lee's glib tongue, and because of the fact there hadn't been a fire since the new alarm was installed, they were prone to forget. This saddened Vic. He hadn't thought folks could forget so easily.

"Well, the campaign continued and election day drew near. The polls were open at eleven o'clock in the morning on a Tuesday, and at nine o'clock that same morning the voters of Bellows Corners gathered en masse in front of the town hall to hear the final arguments of both candidates. (Which idea, incidentally, was an innovation suggested by Hugh Layton.) Vic Dobbs spoke first, briefly and haltingly. He wasn't used to standing on platforms and addressing crowds, and by the time he finished he was sweating freely. A titter went through the crowd.

"Vic came down off the platform, mopping his brow and looking as abashed as a kid, and Stanley Lee took his place. Stanley was a self-composed, confident, benign-looking office seeker. He made a flowery introduction, spoke highly of his opponent, mentioned his love for Bellows Corners and his devotion to its citizens, his ambition to see the town prosper and grow large. There was general applause.

"Stanley looked around him, smiling and pleased, cleared his throat and launched into the real business of persuading the voters to support him and his issues. The listeners hung on his words, enthralled. There was no doubt that Stanley was putting himself across; no doubt, either, but what he would have won the election if the fire whistle hadn't blown.

"It screamed raucously when Stanley was at the very climax of his orating, and it continued to scream for a full minute before the crowd realized what the sound was. Then, across the street, the doors of the fire house flew open and the truck came roaring out, with Vic Dobbs at the wheel. He stopped on the edge of the crowd and yelled: 'Come on! It's the mill!'

"There was a mad scramble. Fully two dozen men piled onto the apparatus, while Vic shouted at the top of his lungs and waved his arms like a hero. Others raced to their automobiles and followed the truck down Main street. The fire whistle kept up its mad screaming and Vic supplemented it with the hand siren on the truck. By and large, there was quite a noise.

"It developed that the fire was in one of the mill's storehouses, an old wooden building long since abandoned by the management. By the time Hugh Layton and Stanley Lee arrived on the scene, the flames had been extinguished and the crowd was cheering Vic Dobbs. Vic had climbed back to the seat of the fire truck, flushed and important-looking, and was waving the crowd to silence. When finally he could be heard he stood up and looked at them in a manner that belied the shyness and discomfort which was evident back at the town hall.

"Folks," he said, "I'm not much at speech-making. In fact I'm not a speech-maker at all. Therefore, all I can say is this: What would have happened if that new fire alarm hadn't been installed?"

"He sat down then, started the engine of the truck and drove back to the fire station. The crowd followed, chewing over what he'd said, speculating, awed by the thought of what might have happened.

"It was then eleven o'clock and the polls were open and everyone went in to vote. When the count was made, it was revealed that Vic Dobbs had won by an overwhelming majority.

"Now, I'm not saying that Vic Dobbs set that fire and turned in the alarm himself, and I'm not saying that he didn't either. All I'm sayin' is, Vic Dobbs, at one time or another during his political career, has had to resort to—let us call it strategy."

Progressiveness Seen by Activities of English

The progressiveness of England, particularly since 1911, is marked by an expansion of governmental control, which, after the war may include public transportation, iron and steel, coal mining and ship building, in the opinion of Dr. Charles L. Mowat, instructor in history on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California.

"England was far from decadent prior to the war," states Dr. Mowat. "Things were happening: unemployment and health insurance, old age pensions. New and different types of schools appeared, with better salaries for teachers. The percentage of the population getting secondary education increased very greatly. Forty per cent of the university students were supported by scholarships.

"In London, passenger transportation was taken over by a board, and the same was done with the generation, but not the distribution, of electricity. After the failure of the general strike in 1926 that weapon was given up, and became illegal. Governmental control was not the result of socialism but was due to the British genius for trying things.

"The war has strengthened democracy in England, through common sacrifice and fortitude, in which all share. Democracy has been rooted since the Magna Carta of 1215 and will survive in the future strong.

THINGS for You TO MAKE

DOUGHBOY, Potato Bug, Jack-of-all-Trades, News Hound, Yankee Bugler—all these and more too is Rags, the tea towel pup. Right down his alley is this army business, for like any American with a job to do he takes it in stride and gets into routine right snappily. Seven cute motifs depict a bit of the serious and a bit of the lighter side of the army, with clever little Rags featured in each. A matching panholder motif shows Rags saluting—and that makes a tea towel set you're sure to want.

I been readin' about some of these divorcees and it seems to me husbands are like automobiles. If you take good care of them, you don't have to keep getting new ones all the time. And one way of takin' good care of him is to see he gets all his vitamins. And that's where KELLOGG'S PEP comes in. 'Course it hasn't got 'em all, but it's extra-rich in the two most likely to be short in ordinary meals—vitamins B, and D. What's more, PEP's one grand-tastin' cereal, too!

Kellogg's Pep

A delicious cereal that supplies per serving (1 oz.): the full minimum daily need of vitamin D; 1/4 the daily need of vitamin B.

Kidneys Must Work Well—

For You To Feel Well
24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling. Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's Pills stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

REPUBLICANS INDEPENDENT VOTERS DISILLUSIONED DEMOCRATS

The Chicago Kelly-Nash machine bosses are hoping that you will not register and therefore not be able to vote for Senator C. WAYLAND BROCKS and his colleagues on the Republican Congressional, Legislative, State and County tickets.

It is their scheme to drive in enough machine-controlled votes in Chicago to offset what they hope will be a small Republican vote downstate due to a light registration.

ARE YOU GOING TO LET THEM
GET AWAY WITH IT?

Register now in the County Clerk's office at the County Seat. Don't wait until the last day of registration in your home precinct—October 6th.

INTERESTING FARM
CHEMURGIC DINNER TONIGHT
AT JOLIET

This Friday night a very interesting dinner known as a farm Chemurgic dinner will be held at the Universalist church in Joliet. Wheeler MacMillan, a very outstanding up-to-date agricultural journalist, is the speaker. The national farm Chemurgic council is located in Columbus, Ohio and is vitally engaged in agriculture, industry and science. The Council is conducting an extensive research at the Northern Regional Research Laboratories of the Bureau of Agricultural Engineering at Peoria.

Chemists working with special farm products such as soy bean oil and corn oil have produced materials that look similar and feel much like natural rubber. Some of these products will stretch 200 percent or more and return to their original forms and show tensile strength of approximately 500 lbs. per square inch.

Mr. MacMillan is scheduled to bring a very vital message pointing out what can be done with our local resources to be substituted for crude rubber and other products which have been shut off from our market due to the war.

BE SURE TO REGISTER OCT. 6 SO YOU CAN VOTE NOV. 3

Voters thruout Illinois are being urged to register on October 6 in order to vote at the November 3rd general election. If you have not already registered then do so now. In Cook county voters can register with their town or village clerk.

In Will County voters can register at their respective polling places on Oct. 6 from 6 am to 9 pm or at the court house in Joliet.

It is very vital that every voter in Illinois turn out and vote. The abolishment of the sales tax on food is one of the propositions to be voted on. So be sure to register so you can cast your vote on this and other vital issues. BE SURE TO REGISTER AND TO VOTE. Be A Good Citizen and exercise your franchise rights.
